Geography Field Trip

On 14th October, Berlin class took a trip to the local city, Paderborn. Whilst there, they identified its human and physical features. They identified and saw examples of how the land has been used and how the old part of the city is still visible today. They followed the river, looking at its features and discussed the source as well as the current patterns on the river bed. In addition to this, they looked at the many commercial uses of the buildings in Paderborn and carried out a traffic survey in contrasting parts of the city.
